A GAME WHERE THE WINNER LOST.

He Won His Case, But He Made Up His Mind That There Was No Fun in It. It strikes the man who would rather go to law than go on a good old time party. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses.

He won his case, but he made up his mind that there was no fun in it. It strikes the man who would rather go to law than go on a good old time party. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses. He goes on a good old time party, but he loses.

"I have to pay the costs, do I?" he snapped. "After I have won my case I have to pay costs for the other side?" "That is the law."

"Well, it's a mighty nice law that makes the winner lose, isn't it? What do you think I went to law for? Do you think I wanted to spend money for fun? Do you think after that fellow has spoiled my property I want to pay him for doing it? What do you think I am, anyway—a muddy brained, cross eyed, half hearted lunatic? How much are the costs?"

"Three hundred and sixty dollars." "Three hundred and sixty dollars! I win a case and get damages and lose $311, do I? I can subtract the amount of the damage from the cost and make out a check for the balance, can I? Well, I suppose I can so long as I have to. But I want you to understand that the next time I go to law it will be because I am a candidate for a lunatic asylum. The next time I have you for a lawyer it will be when I'm the defendant in a case like this and want to lose."

"Do you hear?" he screamed. "When I want to lose I'll have you, I say, so that I can come out ahead of the game. And the next time a man damages my property I'll invite him to come in and knock the roof off the house. I'll have him use my piano for a toboggan on the hall stairs. I'll invite him to play a game of tennis in my dining room and will use my great-grandmother's tea service for pins, and if he wants to jump through our $800 Japanese screen like a circus rider he can do it."

"Then maybe he'll want me to sue him, so that I can get stuck for costs again. And I'll sue him; oh, yes, I'll sue him! and he snorted so loudly that the court usher's afternoon nap was disturbed.—New York Tribune.

Not Quite the Same. Slight mistakes in speaking a foreign language, or in understanding it when some one else speaks it, are commonly nothing more than amusing, but a member of the Alpine club mentions an instance of a more serious nature. He was climbing one of the Alps with a guide, who persisted in talking bad English instead of indifferent French.

"My guide," he says, "had just crossed a snow bridge over a wide crevasse, and turned to await me on the farther side. I asked him if it was weak; he answered, 'No strong.'"

"Naturally I attempted to walk across it instead of crawling. I had almost reached the other side when the bridge gave way, and after a delicious scramble to save myself I subsided helplessly into the crevasse."

"However, I did not go far, and when I had crawled out, with snow down my neck and up my arms and in all my pockets, I discovered that my friend had meant 'Not strong.' I strongly enjoyed him to reserve his English hence forth for use in the valleys."—Exchange.

AN EXPLANATION AND ANSWER.

WHAT IS WINTERILLA?

Why, it is a pleasant and effective remedy for the positive cure of Chapped Hands, Poison Oak, Salt Rheum, Eczema, Sun Burn, Tan; positively removes freckles, and is one of the greatest luxuries for gentlemen after shaving. This is an exquisite article prepared with the greatest care by scientific experts. Its component parts are perfectly harmless, and the ladies toilet is not complete without it. One trial will convince the most skeptical that what we say of WINTERILLA is true. For sale by all druggists in 25c and 50c bottles.

VACATIONS FOR WORKING GIRLS.

Practical Philanthropy That Does Much to Aid Self-Support.

Whether it is that the wages of working women are so meager that they cannot take vacation on their own resources, or that women nowadays work so much harder than of yore that they need a vacation which their grandmothers never thought of, it is quite evident that there is far more of the latter than of the former. That sends working girls out to the fresh air villas than there used to be.

At any rate the interest taken in the working girl and her vacation nowadays is something phenomenal. Whether this wholesale charity is desirable or not depends upon your view point. Miss Woodbridge, secretary of the Working Women's society, says, apropos of the vacation societies: "The Working Women's society believes in the working girl receiving sufficient wages to enable her to go on a vacation whenever and wherever she likes and pay her own expenses. We don't believe in a manufacturer cutting down wages and then having his wife give back a very small slice as her contribution to a fund for giving vacations to working girls, who, if they received just remuneration for their labor, would be enabled to take a rest on their own hook."

On the other hand the wealthy women who are interested in the vacation enterprises reply: "It is impossible for us to get these girls better wages. If we do nothing, because we cannot do that, many girls will die needlessly for want of the help we can give. We help individuals, not the class, we know; but many of us think that to be a class you must first help the individual."

During the past year this work has assumed greater proportions than ever before, and from some plans recently made public next season will see it still further extended.

Miss Churchill, a wealthy young woman of Connecticut, and Miss Willard, daughter of the Wall Street broker of that name, have purchased a small farm in the mountains of Connecticut, on which they propose to erect a summer home for New York working girls. A fine house designed by the architect La Forge is to be built on it at once. The two young ladies claim this establishment will be self-supporting, and therefore not a charity in the ordinary sense of the word. They speak from experience.

Miss Churchill and Miss Willard, with several other society women, last summer entertained several hundred working girls on a small farm in Pittsfield, rented for the purpose. Twenty-four girls were entertained at a time. They spent two weeks in the invigorating country air and then returned to New York to give place to others. The girls were charged $3.50 a week for board, and reduced fares were secured for them on the railroads. The same rates and rules will prevail in the new establishment.

There will of course be little or no profit in the undertaking, but it will pay to cultivate the farm, and sufficient garden truck will be raised to supply the table. Horses will be kept for the use of the guests. Miss Churchill and Miss Willard will spend their summers supervising the house.

In the case of this new establishment and of most of the others for the same purpose, the occupation of the girl makes no difference. The only requirements for the privileges of the new resort are that she be dependent on her own labor for support, and that she be recommended by the Association of Working Girls' clubs or the Working Girls' Vacation society.

The working girls' clubs maintain these summer houses. These, however are exclusively for club members. Normally these houses are supported by the clubs. In reality there is but one of the working girls' clubs that is on a self-supporting basis. This exception is the Thirty-eighth Street club—Home-maker.

Hark! hark! 'tis SOZODONT I cry. Haste youths and maidens, come and buy. Come and a secret I'll unfold. At small expense to young and old. A charm that will on both bestow A ruby lip, and teeth like snow.

Limiting Women's Working Hours.

How many hours shall women and children be allowed to work in factories? The legislature has undertaken to say that fifty-eight hours a week shall be the limit, and a bill fixing it at this figure has passed the senate. Objection is made to this interference on the part of the state on the ground that such a restriction would place our manufacturers at a disadvantage with their competitors in other states where the hours in which women and children may be kept at work are unlimited. It is said also that the class of operators in whose interest this bill is supposed to be framed do not wish for shorter hours, but to be allowed to work as long as they please and earn as much wages as they can.

But these objections do not reach the point. The real question is whether sixty hours or more of factory work is injurious to the women and children thus employed, and whether the proposed restriction of two hours will give the relief necessary for home duties, for study and for recreation. The most valuable product of Massachusetts is its people, and this must be protected even if not another yard of calico or sheeting is made in the state.—Boston Commonwealth.

When Pus Is Dangerous.

Pus is at first healthy. By its formation nature seeks to check or cure inflammation; but if the pus cannot find a free vent it soon becomes septic, when no medicine offers any hope, and even a surgical operation but little. The time for an operation is before the pus becomes septic—generally on the second or third day.—Youth's Companion.

"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly, my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDERICK, Saugerties, New York.

A worn-out with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it.

W. B. Utsey, St. George's, S. C., writes: I have used your August Flower for Dyspepsia and find it an excellent remedy.

A GENTLEMAN OF HIS WORD.

Twelve Years Not Too Long for One Man to Remember a Promise.

"What makes some men the soul of honor?" asked the story teller. "Every one of us has had some experience in life to prove to us that there are men of unimpeachable honor. I think the most honorable gentleman whom I ever met was a man of absolutely informal luck. I first saw him in frontier town. He had been a cowboy, but he had got caught in a terrible winter back on the plains, and at the time I first saw him he was only a wreck of a man, with legs misshapen and weak, and eyes that were nearly blind. He seemed to be just clinging to life in that little Colorado town, doing what little he could in barroom or going long errands, until fate should be kind enough to take him away from his misery."

"He stopped me in the street one night."

"Will you lend me ten dollars?" he said roughly. "I am in a bad way and I need it."

"Now ten dollars was a good deal of money to me at that minute, for in my western experience I had my ups and downs, and at that time I was having my 'downs.'"

"Wouldn't a dollar do you?" I asked, for the fellow looked so bad that I wanted to do something for him, but I knew that I should never see my money again.

"No," he said doggedly, "it won't."

I went to go to Denver. I am about crazy with pain and I want to get there and see if I can't find some relief. I haven't a cent in the world. (There were a good many men in that little town who were in the same predicament.)

"But I can't spare ten dollars," I answered. "I need it."

"You don't need it so much as I do," he said fiercely. "Lend it to me. I'll pay it back to you. Give me your name and address. I'll find you—if I live."

"Well, I gave him the ten dollars. I told him that he need not worry about paying it back. I expected to get out of my troubles some day and then I should not feel the need of it."

"No," he said. "I won't touch it on any other condition. I want to pay it back with interest—12 per cent a year. (Money was worth something out there.)"

"So I wrote out my name for him, giving him as my permanent address the home of my family in the east. The next day he went to Denver. Shortly afterward I climbed into a saddle and rode away to 'punch cows.' I punched them with varying success all over the Colorado grazing fields for nine years. Having had enough of cattle raising by that time and my ideas of great fortunes having been considerably modified, I sold out my cattle and came back."

"Of course, after the first few months following my loan of ten dollars to the cripple, he never came into my thoughts, though there were times when that ten dollars would have been a good friend, but I completely forgot about it. I had been east for three years, had married and was the proud father of the two handsomest children in New York, when a letter was forwarded to me from my father's home in Massachusetts. It was from the cripple. In it was a postoffice order for my ten dollars and interest on it for twelve years, at 12 per cent, a month. There was no word in the letter except thanks for my kindness and the assurance that he was now 'doing pretty well for him.'"

"I call that man a gentleman and I told him so when I wrote him, and I also told him something in the letter which I hoped would please him—that on that day I had made the first bank deposit for my baby son, and that the amount was $21.40, his loan and the interest, and that though the interest for the boy would not be anything like 12 per cent, the deposit ought to bring him good luck. That's all there is to this story."—New York Tribune.

A Faithful Car Horse.

A queer and intelligent Norwich animal is the Franklin street hill horse, belonging to the Norwich Horse Railway company. For several years she has done duty on the hill, and knows quite as much about the business of running horse cars as any other employee. She has no driver. After breakfast she trudges up to her station at the foot of the Franklin street hill alone, and when a loaded car comes to climb the steep grade voluntarily takes her place in front of it and helps to drag it half a mile to Rockwell street. At that point the driver relieves the hill horse, and she goes leisurely back to the bottom of the hill. Sometimes she goes clear down to Franklin square, where the cars are started, and exceeds her duty by helping the other horses along the route before the hill is reached.—Connecticut Cor. New York Sun.

Bound to Use a "K."

There was once in eastern Tennessee a judge well versed in the law, but entirely self-educated, who had this same obstacle of orthography to contend with all his days. In early life he had lived in Knoxville, and for a long time insisted upon spelling the name Knoxville. His friends at last educated him up to the point of adding the K; so thoroughly, in fact, did he learn this lesson that when a few years afterward he removed to Nashville, nothing could prevent him from spelling the name "Knoxville."

After a few years' residence there the judge moved again, this time to Murfreesboro. One day he sat down to write his first letter from this place. He scratched his head in perplexity a moment and finally exclaimed: "Well, I'll give it up! How in the world can they spell the name of this place with a 'K'?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Needs of a Physician.

The physician needs more mental diversion. It would be well for him to cultivate flowers, to study some science, or some department of history, literature or art, or to take up some simple mechanical occupation, to which he could turn from time to time for refreshment.

He needs more active exercise. It would be well for him often to substitute the bicycle for the carriage. He needs more sleep, too—fully seven hours—and as his sleep is often broken in upon at night, he should form the habit of sleeping at odd moments, even by day.—Dr. Minot.
